Los Gatos,
March 10, 1893,

My dear Walsh,

I hope you mention a story I am from "Tales of Soldiers and Civilians" recently republished in "The Evening Star." Would it be too much trouble and... expense to procure a copy of the paper containing it and send it to me? It is an infringement of copyright, and I'd like to ask them to return it.

Mrs. Wrinkshberg says she has a letter from him, and it is obvious by delighted.

It was "only" a friend of mine that died—not a creditor. Fortunately. But I've been on the point of following him since I wrote, I hope you keep well and have not given up your wish to "write things"—though if mine own wish had been drowned in my inkpot years ago it would have been better for me.

Sincerely yours,

Ambrose Bierce
